

Published on PoliticsWest (<http://politicswest.com>)

At Dem convention: waste not, want compost

By: Stephen Keating

By Stephen Keating

Created 07/08/2008 - 6:32pm

Will the Democratic National Convention hit its goal of diverting from landfills 85 percent of waste generated? More than 900 volunteers will be on the case. Two each will host “resource recovery stations” throughout the Pepsi Center, helping patrons toss waste into one of three bins: recycle, compost and landfill.

“We haven’t had a three-bin system with composting at a political convention to date,” said Jaime Nack, deputy director of sustainability and greening for the Democratic National Convention Committee. In the video below, Nack demonstrates how it works.

Source URL:

http://politicswest.com/26736/dem_convention_waste_not_want_compost